IS POET UNDER DOPE'S MAGIC

Richard Warren King, Survivor of San Juan Hill and College Graduate, Writes Verse.

"FOUND" BY LOCAL ATTORNEYS

While in Office For Night Inscribes Weird Poem to Morphine—In Dope's Grasp.

A second DeQuincey, who can weave delightful—and at the same time weird—thoughts into verse, while under the influence of morphine, has been found in Richard Warren King, a DePauw graduate, who is, in the vernacular, down and out, and who has been here for several days seeking help from kindly Rushville men.

While in the hospital during the Spanish-American war, King was subjected to a morphine treatment to ease his pain which fastened a habit on him that has blighted his life. The dope has presented him with a wasted and shriveled shell of a body which must weary through the world until the end.

That Richard Warren King is talented, that is, it is unnecessary to take his word for it, is evidenced by some of the gems of verse that he has produced during the last few days he has been here. He appealed to a local law firm for assistance and their desire to help him resulted in the discovery that he is a genius while under the influence of the terrible drug.

Richard Warren King's is a pathetic story. Born and reared of good parentage in Franklin county, near Brookville, he got a common school education and graduated from the high school. Seeking higher honors he took the four year course at DePauw University and graduated.

When the Spanish-American war broke out, the chance to enlist appealed to this adventurous youth. He saw active service in the war, but his step in going to war was the fatal one for him. King declares he was in Col. Roosevelt's company in the battle of San Juan Hill, and was wounded, the last one being the one which sent him to the hospital and caused his life to be stunted at its very outset.

King describes the battle of San Juan Hill in a fascinating manner. He was wounded first he says, when a bullet pierced his hip. He saw the constellation in an instant, but soon recovered and was in the thick of the fray again. The second time, King relates, a filthy Spaniard had a drawn sword at his breast and was in the act of stabbing him to death when King shot him. King carries a scar on his breast where the sword pierced the skin.

But the fateful third injury was the one which proved King's undoing. He was slugged over the head with the butt end of a rifle in the hands of a Spaniard, and the next time he realized his surroundings, he was in a hospital. He never emerged from there a healthy man, the kind of a man he was when he entered the service.

"Are you a Bull Mooser?" was asked King.

"I hardly believe I am," answered King. "I always admired Teddy a great deal for his daring and leadership, but I would have thought a great deal more of him if he had taken his medicine at Chicago like any real soldier should."

"But his actions now are characteristic," said King when he began to describe the battle of San Juan Hill. "He is the Teddy of old, the daring, adventurous spirit that knows no leader or no one above him. He takes

GUARANTORS TO MEET TONIGHT

Three Directors Will be Elected at Annual Meeting of Rush County Chautauqua Association.

REPORTS ARE TO BE HEARD

The annual meeting of the guarantors of the Rush County Chautauqua Association will be held in the court house assembly room this evening. The meeting will be held for the purpose of hearing the report of the secretary of the association, Prof. J. H. Scholl, and treasurer, Earl H. Payne, and to elect three directors, whose terms of three years expire this year. It is earnestly requested that all the guarantors be present and hear how successful the association has been.

The three directors, whose terms expire this year, and whose vacancies will be filled tonight are Lincoln Guffin, Thomas M. Green and F. E. Wolcott. Mr. Wolcott is the president of the association. The officers are elected by the directors at a date set for their own convenience after the meeting of the guarantors.

LOCAL MAN NAMED VICE PRESIDENT

PLAN AN ORGANIZATION

Ben L. Smith of this city was elected vice-president of the Sixty-seventh Indiana regiment at the annual reunion of the veterans in Indianapolis yesterday. In observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the fall of Vicksburg July 4, of next year, a regimental reunion, participated in by all the surviving Indiana soldiers who fought in that battle is being planned by the Sixty-seventh regiment. A committee was appointed to make arrangements.

The present plans are to hold the reunion at Columbus and it is proposed, at that time, to effect an organization embracing the survivors of every Indiana regiment that participated in the siege and fall of Vicksburg, by regiments. This plan, it is believed, will insure a large attendance by reason of the large interest created. While there are many members of the Sixty-seventh regiment still living, the attendance each year has fallen off until there is scarcely a handful present.

ARE ELATED OVER MICHIGAN TREND

Republicans Here Receive Official Count of Primary, Showing Bull Moose Trailing Behind.

ONLY 7 PER CENT OF G. O. P.

James E. Watson, Home From Vermont, Says Conditions There Are Chaotic.

Republicans here are elated over the returns from Michigan where a primary was held last week. The official count shows the following Republicans, 143,006; Democrats, 21,205; Bull Moose, 5,613.

Local members of the G. O. P. have expressed much satisfaction since these figures have been made public as it indicates that all of the stuff that has been written about Bull Moose strength is mere fancy. Michigan was counted as one of the States Roosevelt expected to carry and it was believed to be a Bull Moose stronghold. Yet the Bull Moose vote was not seven per cent of that cast for the Republican candidates.

The Indianapolis Star, the chief expounder of the Bull Moose doctrine in Indiana, has never published these figures in editions received here. Yet if the Bull Moosers had made anything like a creditable showing the Star would have heralded it far and wide. Republicans here take this as an indication that the strength of the Bull Moose is on the wane, or else it never was very strong at all. And even at that not one-third of the Michigan vote came out to the polls. The vote there is about six hundred thousand.

James E. Watson arrived this morning from Vermont where he made a speech Saturday night. He says political conditions there are very chaotic, and it is difficult to ascertain just what trend today's election will take. They are holding a State election there today. Roosevelt expressed fear as to the outcome in Vermont shortly before leaving that State Saturday, but Mr. Watson says that is a bugaboo, because Roosevelt desires to brag of the great victory if he does gain a slight advantage.

Republican leaders are feeling gratified on account of the news which is coming in from the poll of voters being taken in various parts of the State. It is their belief from the facts they have at hand that the Bull Moose movement reached its highest tide sometime ago and is now receding with a rapidity that is becoming apparent every day.

Fred A. Sims, State chairman, says he is highly pleased both with the results of the poll which is being taken over the State and with the news which is constantly coming in of the organization of strong Republican clubs in various counties and enthusiastic Republican meetings. Mr. Sims says that the poll taken in one hundred precincts scattered all over the State show that there is not more than one Bull Moose to each eight Republicans and that Taft is leading Roosevelt all the way from three to ten to one.

For example, it is said that in Montgomery county, where the last Republican vote for President was 1401, the poll of two-thirds of the county has revealed only 151 Bull Moosers. It is estimated that there are not more than two hundred Bull Moosers in Clinton county, and scarcely half that many in Newton county. Reports from other counties the Republican leaders say, show conclusively that there is more noise than substance in the Bull Moose claims of strength in Indiana. It is anticipated that the big Republican

5 DEFENDANTS DEFAULT IN COURT

Prosecutor is Ordered by Judge Blair to Appear in Each of the Cases.

ONE DIVORCE IS GRANTED

The $10,000 Bowman Damage Suit Against Milroy Co. and $5,000 Damage Suit Dismissed.

This term of the circuit court opened in earnest today, when action was taken in a number of cases. The docket is heavily laden with cases, and from present indications, a lot of business will be done. At least there is a lot there to be done.

The defendants in five divorce suits defaulted today and in each instance the prosecutor was ordered to appear when the case is heard. A divorce was granted to James W. Floyd from his wife, Ida B. Floyd, upon payment of costs.

The divorced suits in which the defendants defaulted were William Perkins against Katherine Perkins, Rhoda A. Pattison against Cary L. Pattison, Charles A. Sayler against Lorena Sayler, Margaret A. Monfort against Gilbert Monfort, and Daisy Castleman against Sidney Castleman. There was nothing for Gilbert Monfort to do but default, because he is now serving time in the Indiana State penitentiary for passing a forged check.

On motion of the plaintiff the case of Minnie Bowman, administratrix of the estate of Robert L. Bowman, against the Milroy Drain & Tile Company for ten thousand dollars damages, was sent to Shelby county on a change of venue. Mrs. Bowman asked that amount in damages on account of the death of her husband, who was killed by an explosion at the Milroy plant. She alleges escaping gas, through negligence of the company, was instrumental in her husband's death.

The case of Emory Ratekin against James I. Barnes and George Tishock, Logansport contractors, for five thousand dollars damages, was dismissed. Ratekin claimed that amount of damages because of an injury which he received to one of his feet while working on the New Salem school building. The Logansport man had the contract for the building.

Judge Blair today rendered judgment for the defendant in the case of the State of Indiana on the relation of the Farmers Trust Company against the Board of Finance of Orange township. He found for the board of finance last spring.

The case of Carey O. Patton against the Big Four railroad for $850 for damages due to the loss on stock shipped over the road was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

Commissioners Busy Today at Their Regular Monthly Meeting.

The county commissioners were in regular monthly session in the court house today. The usual claims for the month were allowed. The most of the day was spent by the commissioners in figuring up the road tax levy in each township for roads under construction. The result of their figuring showed that Noble township has the highest levy—sixty-six cents. But even this is lower than last year when the Noble township levy was seventy-five cents.

HOLD ALL DAY MEETING

Sunday School of Blue Ridge Spends an Enjoyable Day.

A big all day meeting was held on Sunday in the W. S. Thompson grove near Blue Ridge by the Sunday schools of the Christian Union and the Methodist churches at that place. There were over four hundred people present. About one hundred gallons of lemonade were consumed. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Whitted and the Rev. Mr. McMullin and by the Rev. Mr. Clinton of Shelbyville. Another meeting will be held next Sunday. The meeting will be addressed by the Rev. Mr. Fair of Homer, the Rev. Mr. Stewart of Homer and others.

HELD UP ON TRIP BY TWO FLOODS

T. W. Lytle and Charles Frazee Wire Their Train is Detained in Wisconsin by Washouts.

WATER, WATER AT EVERY TURN

Postmaster Charles Frazee and T. W. Lytle, who left here Sunday on a fishing trip near Minnequa, Wisconsin, are encompassed by a flood such as has not raged in that part of Wisconsin for several years, according to a telegram received from them this morning. They wired that there were "washouts behind us and washouts in front of us," but they didn't say whether there were washouts to the right of them. They were detained at Mosinee, Wis., and are uncertain when they will be able to reach the place they intended to go. Last night's was not the first flood they met with. Out of Chicago Sunday night they were detained by a flood. The telegram said that they could see nothing but a wide expanse of water.

SUPPLIES FOR NEXT REGISTER ARE HERE

One More Blank is Included This Time as Compared to May Registration.

VOTERS URGED TO REGISTER

The supplies for the second registration to take place in Indiana under the new law next Friday, September 6, have been received by County Auditor Jesse Stone. The supplies this time will contain one more blank than did those given out in May.

The extra blank will be for persons of foreign birth who came to the United States with their fathers and become citizens by virtue of the naturalization of their parents. The only blanks which were provided at the first registration were for native born voters and for those who were foreign born but had declared their intentions of becoming citizens.

The various party organizations are becoming active in their efforts to get the voters to register in September. The State organizations are sending instructions to the local organizations to get the votes out. Those who registered in May will not have to register again unless they have moved or should move before the October registration. Unless registered at one of the three periods for that purpose no voter will be allowed to cast his ballot.

LOCAL STEPPERS IN EVERY RACE

First Day's Card at the State Fair Shows Rushville Trainers in Every Event.

HARRIE JONES IS IN ALL THREE

Dope Bucket is Spilled and Clell Maple's Game of Chance Takes Second Money.

Rush county horse flesh was much in evidence at the first day's races at the State fair in Indianapolis yesterday. Either a Rush county pacer or trotter or a Rushville driver was in every one of the three races on the program.

Clell Maple, who according to the dope sheet, was to win the three-year-old pace with Game of Chance, failed to keep up with the expectations of the dopes, and had to be content with second money. He won the first heat with ease, but was unable to outdistance Dan Pointer in the last two heats. The time by heats was 2:14 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:13 $\frac{1}{4}$ and 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Game of Chance is Rush county bred and trained and belongs to a Rush county man. He is by The Patchen Boy, the famous old pacer who was kept here by Dick Wilson for a number of years, and his dam was out of Gambrel. Game of Chance has been considered one of the most likely colts out this year. He has won several races, and has taken a number of seconds.

Harrie Jones drove Azim in the 2:24 trot yesterday but did not get in the money. The horse finished fifth each of the three heats. Harrie Jones won third money in the 2:17 pace with Phirobells, finishing second, third and fourth respectively.

Katherine E., another horse in Jones' stable, went one heat in the pace, finishing seventh and was drawn.

Harrie won third money in the three-year-old pace with Javelin, finishing second and third twice.

Speaking of the three-year-old pace, the Indianapolis Star says:

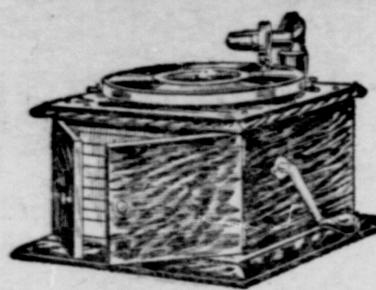

"The feature race of the afternoon races was the 3-year-old-and-under class for pacers, won by the Indiana-bred colt, Dan Pointer, driven by A. J. Wood of Goshen, Ind., who bred him and owns his sire, the great Elastic Pointer, 2:06 $\frac{1}{2}$, champion three-mile pacer of the world. Game of Chance won the opening heat of this event in an easy manner and looked to have the other colts at his mercy, but Dan Pointer took the lead from him in the second heat at the first quarter and was at the half leading comfortably in 1:55 $\frac{1}{2}$, maintaining his lead to the wire in this event. He was not compelled to step the third heat faster than 2:16 $\frac{1}{2}$, in an easy mile, in which he led the entire distance."

Local people are taking more than usual interest in the State fair this year, and the crowd from here promises to be larger each succeeding day. Yesterday a number of fast horse admirers were attracted to the fair to see Clell Maple drive Game of Chance.

It is not likely that many days of the State fair will pass without a Rush county driver being in at least one race. Harrie Jones and Clell Maple have several entries, and John Dagler will probably drive Ruth Randolph one day this week.

Rushville is represented in departments other than the speed department, because A. P. Walker and John F. Boyd, both Jersey cattle admirers, have their choicest herd of Jerseys at the fair this week and will enter the ring against one another.

RAGING RIVERS
CREATE HAVOCMany Meet Death In Eastern Cloudbursts.

FERTILE VALLEYS INUNDATED

Reports From Western Pennsylvania,
Eastern Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia Are Meager, Owing to Devastation of Wire Service, but Twenty-Four Known Dead and Millions of Loss Give Hint of Worse.

Pittsburg, Sept. 3.—Fragmentary reports from the flooded region following torrential rain and cloudbursts throughout western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and large parts of the Panhandle of West Virginia, tell of at least twenty-four dead, millions of dollars of property destroyed, railroads and telegraphs demoralized.

The latest reports give the following table of deaths:

Collers, W. Va., at least nine drowned and probably twenty. Cherry Valley, six drowned. Burgettstown, one drowned. Avella, three drowned. Cannonsburg, four drowned. Pittsburg, one killed by lightning.

The list of fatalities will probably be greater, for in many parts of the devastated district there will be no wire communication for some days. The telegraph companies and the Pennsylvania and Wabash railroads have thousands of men at work making repairs. For nearly five hours the rain fell in torrents. Cloudbursts filled fertile valleys, raging rivers annihilated crops and carried away bridges and railroad tracks. Lightning struck in scores of places. Streams in a few hours became grim agents of destruction. Traffic practically stopped and wire traffic is paralyzed throughout most of the region. Collers and Cherry Valley in West Virginia are practically wiped out. A dozen places in the extreme western end of Pennsylvania are inundated. At New Philadelphia, Steubenville and other Ohio towns near the Ohio river, the damage wrought was heavy.

The Panhandle division of the Pennsylvania railroad has ceased train operations. Fourteen miles of track were washed away near Collers. Three bridges were carried downstream. For miles down Raccoon creek the roadbed is submerged. It will be a fortnight before traffic can be resumed there. A freight train on the Wabash jumped the track five miles north of Wellsburgh, W. Va., and the entire train rolled into Cross creek. The engineer swam out, but the remainder of the train crew drowned. Washington county alone represents property damage that will exceed $2,000,000. Thousands of sheep and cattle were drowned in the fields. The Monongahela and Allegheny rivers are near the flood stage and consequently the Ohio is overflowing its banks at many points west of Pittsburgh.

Wreck Due to Washout.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 3.—Four persons were killed in a passenger train wreck on the Soo road, due to the train backing into a river when stalled by a flood ahead. Twenty-three were injured, six seriously.

STEAMER SANK

While Firemen Were Fighting Fierce Blaze In Her Hold.

Baltimore, Sept. 3.—Following an outbreak of fire which swept through her hold with amazing rapidity and fierceness, the steamship Nantucket of the Merchants and Miners Transportation company, turned turtle and sank to the bottom of the harbor.

Forty firemen and members of the crew, who had been fighting the flames from the deck of the ship, narrowly missed death as the steamer filled with water.

Memorial to President's Mother.

Millbury, Mass., Sept. 3.—As a memorial to his mother, Mrs. Louisa Taft's work and interest in the local Unitarian church during her life, President Taft has sent a check for $200 to Rev. W. T. Hutchins, pastor, to go toward the support of the church, at which he also attended when a boy. The president's gift with a personal letter accompanying the gift, has been received by Rev. Hutchins.

Wilson at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 3.—In his Labor day speech here Governor Woodrow Wilson signaled the opening of his campaign in New York state by an attack on the platform of the Progressive party and Colonel Roosevelt. "I am not big enough," he said, "to play providence, and my objection to the platform of the Progressive party is that I do not think any other man is big enough to play it."

Battle Celebration.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 3.—Merchants will close their places of business tomorrow at noon for the parade and the exercises at the site of Fort Harrison in the celebration of the centennial of the battle with the Indians when the fort was under command of Captain Zachary Taylor. All the city schools will be closed and more than 1,000 children will be in the parade.

Mr. von Klein-Smid addressed the officers of the institution and outlined some of the work he hopes, with their co-operation, to accomplish. It will be part of his duties to examine all new arrivals, and those who are adjudged abnormal or subnormal in development and he will with the superintendent, David C. A RECORD BREAKER

That is What State Fair Officials Expect This Week.

Indianapolis, Sept. 3.—After breaking its record for paid admissions every year for five consecutive years, the Indiana state fair has started in to do it again before the end of the present exposition, which closes next Friday night. And all the signs of the first day were highly favorable to such a result. Reports from state fairs that have been held so far this summer say that enormous crowds attended these expositions everywhere. Reports from county fairs in Indiana, which have been made to the state board of agriculture for a month have told the same story of big crowds everywhere.

The number of people who in 1907 paid admissions to see the fair was 106,750; in 1908 the figure reached 117,000; in 1909 it moved up to 121,445; it jumped to 130,716 in 1910; last year it shot up to 143,756. On this basis the fair officials estimate that the paid admissions for this week, with a weather clause in the prediction—should go to 155,000.

KILLED WIFE

Miner Took Shot at Crowd of Visitors and Slew Mate.

Linton, Ind., Sept. 3.—In the presence of three men and two women, David Archer, a miner, shot and killed his wife at their home near here. Archer is in jail. Family troubles, it is said, were responsible for the murder. Mrs. Archer is said to have been drinking with her friends when Archer came home. The police say Archer discharged his revolver at the entire party, but only one bullet took effect.

DePauw Head Yet Unknown.

Indianapolis, Sept. 3.—No selection for a new president for DePauw university was made at a meeting yesterday of a special committee appointed for the purpose, which met at the office of Hugh Dougherty, president of the board of directors of the university. About twenty men are being considered for the place. The members of the committee will continue their investigations during the next ten days, when they will be called together by Mr. Dougherty. It is probable that a selection will be made at that meeting, although it may be delayed until a later date, Mr. Dougherty said.

Dangerous Sleeping Place.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 3.—Homer Lyons, aged seventeen, son of William Lyons, a contractor of this city, was ground to pieces on the right of way of the Pennsylvania railroad by a passenger train. The boy worked at the plant of the Sneath Glass company and had sat down on the end of the ties and fell asleep.

Sink With Their Skiff.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Sept. 3.—Obadiah Plummer, aged twenty-four, and his sister Letitia, aged fourteen, were drowned together while skiff riding in the Ohio river, near Bethlehem, thirty miles above this city. There was a collision between the skiff and a motor boat, and brother and sister sank with their craft.

Veterans Bound For Los Angeles.

Indianapolis, Sept. 3.—Two special cars, bearing approximately sixty-five members of the G. A. R. from Indianapolis and surrounding cities will depart from Indianapolis tomorrow for Los Angeles, where the forty-sixth national encampment of the Grand Army is to be held, beginning Sept. 9.

Suicides at Linton.

Linton, Ind., Sept. 3.—Hux Williams, aged twenty-eight, of this city, took a dose of morphine and died two hours later. Mrs. J. A. Brown also died from the effects of carbolic acid. Ill health was the cause of her ending her life. Both deaths occurred within two hours of each other.

SHORT SLEEVES LEAD TO SCENE IN CHURCH

Bishop Mobbed for Ordering a Girl Out.

Rome, Sept. 3.—While conducting confirmation service there, Bishop Lliverio of Citta Di Castello objected to the short sleeves worn by a girl. He stopped the ceremony and ordered the girl to leave the church. She remained, however, and the bishop tried to eject her, when several young men, including the son of a deputy, defended the girl and prevented her ejection. The bishop withdrew to the sacristy.

The townspeople made a demonstration in front of the Episcopal palace last evening, and when the bishop came out to make an address they pelted him with tomatoes and carrots.

WENT IT BLIND

Richmond Philosopher Trusted to Luck to Give Him the Right Woman.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 3.—Henry Rogers, sixty years old, came to Richmond several weeks ago from Pennsylvania, advertised for a wife in local newspapers and received more than fifty replies from women who were willing to become his bride. So confused was Rogers in attempting to reach a decision from the reading of the letters that he shuffled them up and drew one blindly from the pack, with the result that it has just been announced that Mrs. Sarah Arvin of Richmond has become Mrs. Henry Rogers.

The Eleventh Murder.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 3.—As the result of a negro brawl at Boldman's saloon, Ira Jenkins, thirty-three years old, is dead and Robert Stoces is at the general hospital. Tom Raymond the alleged murderer, was captured by the police. Jenkins's death is the eleventh murder in the negro quarter, four having occurred in the last seven weeks.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark, glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Wyeth Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.

The beauty of the hair depends more on its rich, even shading than anything else. Don't have dry, harsh faded hair, when a simple, harmless remedy will bring back the color in a few days; and don't be tormented with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hairs. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and beauty to your hair.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented.

Sam Sanderson Says:

That Armageddon is uncomfortably hot even for a winter resort.

that it is practically inoperative. Governor Plaisted himself is a "wet." In his address Governor Marshall refused to discuss the liquor question, saying that it was a "local question." In his speech he said:

"I am a Democrat, and because I am a Democrat I believe in the doctrine of local self government. I believe, too, at this particular time, national issues are of more importance than local questions. Therefore I want to talk exclusively on what I consider to be national issues."

It cost $160,000 to nominate him, not including expenses paid from "another fund" and the money spent by "local committees." Hal all this money been spent in behalf of anybody else it would have been a corruption fund. In this case, however, it is to be looked upon as being as righteous as if it were a church contribution.

Whatever may happen in the next few years there are thousands and thousands of his fellow citizens who will never believe that Theodore Roosevelt ever gave his successor in the white house the "square deal" that he preaches about so profusely in public.

Let the belligerents rant as they may, the time has not yet come when a constitutional or legal right is to be regarded as a political or social wrong.

Here is the prediction that before election day the Ananias club will be full to overflowing and the number of "undesirable citizens" will be multiplied by thousands.

"The square deal" is all right, and should be adopted by everybody, but it is one thing to preach it and a very different thing to practice it.

The Colonel's objection to Penrose is that the Pennsylvanian is no longer going his way.

No réform is possible without honesty," says T. R. This is true, of course, comments the Marion Chronicle. There is many a man who may be depended upon to be at a certain place at a certain hour to pay a certain amount of money, if he promises to be there. This is honesty, so far as that one transaction goes, and the man is honest in this respect in all his transactions, and yet this same man may be a thief at heart. It is business—good business—to keep such promises. In this respect honesty is the best policy, and it may be so practiced merely as a shrewd policy, and yet this same man who adopts and practices this policy may have the instincts of a thief. But genuine honesty expresses only its convictions. It will not say things merely to "look well in the Record." It will not attempt to mislead, and, as a rule, it will not be vociferous in denunciation of others who disagree with it in matters of mere opinion.

According to T. R., Andrew Jackson "had no mind of his own;" Monroe was nothing but a "figurehead;" Madison was a man of "imbecile capacity" and "a disgrace to the country," while Thomas Jefferson was "timid, vacillating, the most incapable executive that ever sat in the presidential chair, and was incapable of placing the proper value upon the truth." After all, perhaps there has never been but one honest and capable president, and of course everybody knows who that is in the estimation of Oyster Bay.

Governor Marshall, in his first speech in Maine, refused to discuss the liquor question now agitating Maine. Maine, as will be remembered, was the first prohibition state. IS POET UNDER DOPE'S MAGIC

his orders from Theodore Roosevelt alone.

"It was this trait in him that nearly resulted in the annihilation of his company. There would never have been the terrible assault at San Juan had it not been for the fact that Roosevelt disobeyed orders. He dashed up the hill ahead of the command and was soon encased between two battalions of Spaniards who were eager for American blood. Roosevelt's retreat was cut off from behind and there was only a bare possibility that any aid would come in time.

"Thanks to the two companies of colored soldiers that the Bull Moose party has a leader and that I am here to relate the story, for they saved the day. It was not Roosevelt. The colored boys routed the Spaniards behind us and left open a retreat, but not without some damage to us."

King has taken the cure for morphine habit twice, but it had no effect on his diseased mind. Each time he has emerged from the treatment no better in body or spirit. King asserts that the second class he was in for treatment for the morphine habit also included the famous novelist, Opie Reid, who has lectured here.

King declares that in this second treatment, they kept shooting slugs of something into him which the physicians said was not morphine, but which he was convinced afterwards was morphine. He said he was stark crazy for a dose of dope within twenty-six hours after he was sent out leased as cured.

Opie Reid, too, King declares, was not cured of the habit. He says the famous Kentucky novelist is still a servant of dope, and used it as regularly as he ever did. King asserts that he has corresponded with Opie Reid since they were released from the hospital, and that Reid wrote him he could withstand the pangs of hunger for morphine no more than thirty-six hours after he was sent out as cured.

King applied to a local law firm the other day for work. The attorneys had compassion on him and attempted to assist him. King has just been released from an Indianapolis hospital where he nearly died with the fever, and presents a sorry countenance and figure. He was allowed to sleep in this law office several nights, and the barristers were rewarded for their kindness with several pieces of poetry which King wrote during the long nights and which he left about on the tables.

The first two King left were gems and the attorneys went into rapsodies. The first was pathetic, and expressed the sorrow and regret of a wasted life. The second was brimful of mirth, and in a happy vein, it described good old Kentucky. But the one which King left in the office only recently indicates the abject condition of his mind while under the influence of the drug, and the same time it reveals the wonderful resourcefulness of the man. It is inscribed to his god, "Morphine," and it is reproduced herewith:

Morphine.

Love thee, I loathe thee, thou false fiend of hell.

No language the depths of my loathing can tell.

I hate, I dread thee, and yet have I given

For thee every bright hope in earth and in heaven.

When wounded and suffering, too weak to contend,

Thou camest to me in the guise of a friend;

Did quiet each doubt and banish each pain,

But drew round me thy fetters till struggle was vain.

Then when thy poor victim discovered, too late,

And sought to escape from his terrible fate,

How dreadful the tortures that o'er him you threw,

Until in despair he returned unto you.

But when he once more acknowledged thy power,

Oh, sweet was the welcome received in that hour.

Not one of the faithful e'er knew greater bliss

When in Paradise welcomed by his Hours sweet kiss.

Yet curse thee for thou has brought me a curse.

E'en Dante's Inferno depicts nothing worse,

And yet thou alone canst give me relief

In the midst of my sorrow, my pain and my grief.

Yet, d—mn thee forever, thou fiend from below;

My last dying breath shall heap curses on you.

Aye, d—mn thee forever, no foul serpent's sting

Is one-half so bitter as that thou dost bring.

Love thee? Thou who has ruined my life,

Hast robbed me of friends, money, children and wife,

Of all worth living for I am bereft.

Only the sad, bitter memory is left.

I dread thee and hate thee, yet thee to obtain,

I would risk every danger, endure every pain.

And thou alone of all has been true to every call,

Unto every call life's lone journey through.

Hast cheered me in trouble, in pain given relief,

Given comfort in midst of my sorrow and grief,

Given heed to my cry in my sad loneliness,

In memory's pain, sweet forgetfulness.

Then come unto me, my enemy dear, in thy influence sweet, I'll forget pain and fear.

There, thou art in my arm, soon I'll be in thine,

And wrapt in thy arms, sweet slumber be mine.

HAY FEVER ATTACKS QUICKLY ENDED

Just Try Ely's Cream Balm, A Cleaning, Healing Antiseptic Cream.

Are you half sick for two or three months every summer with Hay Fever—violent sneezing spells, running at the nose, intense itching in the corners of the eyes, pain and soreness in the back of the throat, at nights a stuffed-up feeling in the head and an asthmatic wheezing in the throat and chest? If so, you can get almost instant relief by simply using a cleansing, healing antiseptic Cream called Ely's Cream Balm.

Hay Fever is due to an extremely sensitive condition of the membrane lining the nose and throat. Dust, smoke and certain odors irritate this delicate inside skin, it becomes inflamed, caused a watery discharge from the nose and violent spasms of sneezing.

Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in five minutes' time. It opens up the air passages, soothes, heals and strengthens the weakened, inflamed membranes, restores them to healthy, normal condition, so that you are not subject to Hay Fever attacks.

work of yours, dear, and these silly accusations."

We had walked to the end of the wide hallway, and I dropped down in a window seat, grossly neglecting my duties and forgetting that my friends were apt to get mixed. The prospect of going back to that tidy little life Jo and I once led suddenly appalled me.

"I don't want you to—to end it," I stammered. And seeing Jo's amazed expression, I hurried on; "Being Secretary of Frivolous Affairs isn't important, I know, but it's my life now. I can't go back to things as they were. I would never be satisfied."

"And you haven't asked me the one question I expected you to ask." Jo smiled quizzically.

Suddenly I thought of it.

"Where did you know John?" I demanded.

"He has a client who wants to buy our stock in the mine," she answered; "a client who thinks he can pump it dry."

"Can it be done, Jo?"

"I don't know." She laughed outright at my excitement. "He wants to buy up all the stock. He can get it cheap, except ours. He offers us five thousand dollars for it. It's worth nothing unless the mine is pumped.

Odd, wasn't it, Mr. Crowninshield never guessed who I was? And of course I didn't tell him."

"Gracious me!" I exclaimed, rather breathless at the prospect. "What does Mr. Partridge say?"

"Sell."

"Well, what are you—we—going to do? Sell?"

"I'd rather have the income," she answered.

"But there isn't any," I pointed out.

"If a man knows—and he does know, Louie—that he can pump that mine dry, can buy up all the stock practically for nothing, except ours, and he lets our little bundle keep him from pumping, he's crazy. And if he pumps we will have an income. It's a gambler's chance, and I am going to take it."

"Yes, sounds gamby," I commented. "What the poker players call a bluff."

"I'm not bluffing—I'm standing pat," Jo reminded me. "And I'm taking the chance because I want to end this

"Why, what do you mean?" Jo asked, but I'm sure she knew what I was going to answer.

"John Crowninshield never looked twice at a woman in his life; he has looked at you I don't know how many times, for I don't know how many interviews have been necessary about that stock, but"—I thrust out a rigid forefinger dramatically—"beware!"

It was perhaps ten o'clock when Jo took a notion to see the gallery. The notion was quite sudden, too. She even interrupted John to say so, apropos of nothing. We met Hap on the stairs as we went up. I remembered afterward that he looked puzzled and was flushed a little. He shouted to Burrows from the stairs.

"Who locked the card-room?"

"No one, sir."

"It's locked; have it unlocked. Where is Thomas?"

"I don't know, sir."

There was more anger in the way he spoke to Burrows than such a simple thing warranted. He came up to the gallery with us, glaring at the card-room door as we passed.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Do you want to play poker?"

"No, but I want the room unlocked. It's not supposed to be locked."

We climbed upward in silence.

"Well, you might quit looking like a thundercloud," I suggested presently. "I haven't been horrid, have I?"

He glanced up to where Jo and John Crowninshield were disappearing into the gallery, and apropos of nothing he seized my hand and pressed it to his lips.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

"Are all these pictures originals?" she asked.

Hap and I Dropped Down on a Bench.

"No," John answered her. "A few are copies, but valuable copies."

"Let's see if I can pick the copies," she suggested, and walked the length of the gallery again.

Hap and I dropped down on a bench, but John followed her.

"That one," said Jo presently.

"Oh, that's easy," I cried. "The original is in the National Gallery, and you know it."

"And this?"

"No, that's a Greuze," John explained.

"Sorry," smiled Jo. "Greuze made so many heads, didn't he? Is the Lely next to it genuine?"

"Yes."

"Is that a Velasquez, or a copy?" Hap asked her, and indicated the disputed picture before which we were sitting.

I know I went red, but he was not looking at me. He led the way to a rustic bench that ran the length of the court, and waited for me to sit down.

"I want to tell you why I happened to be in your room this morning," he said quite frankly. The tone robbed his words of an embarrassment. I could even let my face relax. "Perhaps first you'd like to know that we got Winthrop out on bail," he went on, "although it took the combined efforts of Hazard money and Crowninshield influence to do it. We had to drag a judge away from a poker game and my mother to jail at midnight to go bail."

"But Mr. Abbott's out? He's at home?" I questioned.

"Yes," he answered. "Oh, it's a lot of tommyrot. They have nothing against him." A mud-headed detective pounced upon the first person he saw, which happened to be Winthrop, shot him in the arm, and found some family jewels in his safe."

"Jewels!" I exclaimed.

"I might as well tell you—you'll see it in the newspapers. They mean nothing, except the lively imaginations of the police connect them with the jewel robberies we've been reading about."

"How absurd! But, of course, Mr. Abbott can prove he didn't steal them? The people who have been robbed will have to identify their property, and there you are! If they are Mr. Abbott's family jewels, they are not any one else's. It's ridiculously simple, isn't it?"

"It is," he agreed. He narrowed his eyes and stared into space for a while, then rose and began pacing in front of me. What he was trying to figure in, or out, was that emerald bracelet which I didn't know about, and of which he had not the slightest intention of telling me. It was incriminating evidence against Winthrop.

"What does Mr. Crowninshield think?" I asked.

"Oh, you know how he is—a regular clam. Thinks a good deal and says nothing. He's inclined to treat the whole thing as a joke, except—"

"Except what?"

He sat down suddenly.

"I'm forgetting to tell you my exciting little story," he said, and the question passed unanswered. "We got home about two, all dead tired. I took Winthrop home and wanted to stay with him, but he wouldn't have it. It didn't take me long to go to sleep. Well, something woke me—what, I don't know—but it was odd, for I never wake up suddenly. I sat up in bed and listened. At first I could only hear the surf, and then I caught another sound, an annoying little rasp I couldn't explain to myself. I thought I heard a lot of stuff about rats and such junk, but I got up and went into John's bedroom. I listened again; the sound was closer. I didn't want to wake John, for I knew he would be amused, but with all these robberies, I decided I'd find out what it was.

"Finally I located the sound in the hall. I sneaked to the door and listened. Ten seconds of listening convinced me that some one was at Natalie's door, and the sound was that of an instrument against the lock.

"Now, what I intended to do was to jerk open John's door suddenly and see who it was and why he was there. But the blamed door stuck as I jerked, and when I did get it open a woman—a woman, you understand!—was scooting down the hallway, not up toward the steps, but down toward Laura's room, or mine. It was pretty dark, but there was enough light for me to see that it wasn't Laura. Laura is skinny; this woman was plump.

"I can't tell you why I followed except the thing was queer. The lady reached the end of the hall, opened Laura's door and disappeared. I followed. I was just in time to see the door into Laura's bedroom close. Now, I was sure it wasn't Laura, so I followed again. Laura was asleep, and there was a swish of skirts through the door into my mother's bedroom. I lost track there of everything except that some one was trying to escape me. My mother was snoring softly as we whizzed through—wherever it was ahead of me and myself—then—well, the next thing after more door-opening and closing, my going into a chair once and knocking the peeling off my shins, was your screaming." He paused and stared at me. "Louie, do you remember any one coming in before you screamed?"

"No," I replied. "I really don't remember screaming. I knew something was wrong, that I was sitting up in bed, that I had snapped on the lights, and that—that you were there."

"I was so astonished when you screamed," he went on, "that I stopped dead in my tracks and whoever was trying to escape me, did. I went back to bed and did some thinking. I tried to connect up all the queer things that had happened—Natalie losing her jewels, Winthrop being arrested, the woman at Natalie's door, but I couldn't get anywhere. My mind simply tied itself into a knot, everything jumbled. I could make no connection. But there's one thing certain. If we have a thief here it's a woman!"

My mouth dropped open a bit in the way I thought I had learned to control, but I didn't say anything.

"If there had been just one door locked, I'd have had her, but every door was unlocked, making it as easy as pie for anybody who wanted to steal."

"But we have nothing to steal," I expostulated; "at least no jewels. I have none, Laura has none, and your mother's are in the bank. Natalie's door was locked, wasn't it?"

"She has had her lesson." "Besides, we've never been certain before that a thief was here."

PRESIDENT GOMEZ PROMISES AMENDS

He Finds That Uncle Sam Means Business.

Washington, Sept. 3.—In a telegram received from President Gomez of Cuba by President Taft are contained expressions of regret and the promise of amends. It is now likely that nothing further will be said by the department or the legation pending the course of events in Havana, in view of President Gomez's assurances. It is expected that a reply will be sent by the president soon.

There is no doubt here that the serious light in which the state department viewed the assault on Mr. Gibson, the charge d'affaires, and the campaign of newspaper abuse is responsible for the Gomez message to the president.

The department is now waiting to see whether Gibson's assailant will be punished as promised and the newspapers deprived of any excuse for further misrepresenting the attitude of the United States and their own government in the matter of the Reilly and other claims.

FIRST ELECTION OF THE SERIES

Vermont Engaged In Battle of Ballots Today.

THE CONTEST IS A BITTER ONE

Campaign For Governorship Has Aroused an Interest Unprecedented in the Old Green Mountain State, and the Vote Today Is Expected to Break All Records—Possibility of Contest Going to the Legislature.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 3.—A political campaign for the governorship of Vermont unprecedented by the interest aroused and of bitterness engendered, ended with rallies in scores of towns and cities last night. A vote approaching 70,000 is prophesied in today's election, of which C. D. Thompson, state chairman of the Progressive party, claims 20,000. That this is the high water mark is evidenced by the more conservative claims of other Bull Moose leaders. Twelve thousand and upward will be a virtual victory for the third party movement, and to keep this figure down is the desperate endeavor of the old guard Republicans. They are making no statement other than that their candidate will be elected today. For a quarter of a century the average vote in Vermont on the presidential year has been 63,000. Giving the Prohibitionists and Socialists their thousand each, about 60,000 votes are left to be divided between Allen Fletcher of Cavendish, Republican, Harland B. Howe, of St. Johnsbury, Democrat, and the Rev. Frazer Metzger of Randolph, Progressive. Two years ago the Democratic nominee for governor polled 17,000 votes. Mr. Howe is expected to exceed this number because of the strong Wilson sentiment in many parts of the state.

That the Democrats went to the polls today with unbroken ranks is virtually conceded. If they succeed in bringing their vote up to 20,000 the 40,000 left for the regular Republicans and Progressives will likely be split into 25,000 for Fletcher and 15,000 for Metzger, and the election will be thrown into the legislature. The senate will be almost solidly Republican, according to custom, and as the Progressives have less than fifty candidates for the house, the representatives will be for Fletcher by a large majority. The only thing that will overthrow this alignment is a surprising gain on the part of the Democrats. Vermont has not been so shaken in years, and a surprising vote either way will not upset the knowing politicians.

The alleged tax-dodging record of Mr. Fletcher, whose millions have been paraded before the voters by both Progressives and Democrats, and the continued statement that he came to Vermont from Indianapolis with the purpose of becoming governor, are the most vulnerable points in his political armor. The rest of his ticket bids fair to be elected.

It was the wish of the Republicans to confine the campaign to state issues, of which there are practically none that interest the Progressive party. The latter stand for wide open primaries, and it is this that the old guard fears worse than poison. The rank and file wish to have something to say about who is nominated for the governorship, which they have never had heretofore. The Progressive movement has been greatly aided by the brilliant array of Bull Moose orators who have covered the state.

In Burlington it is currently reported that a campaign barrel has been opened and that floaters are being bought for Fletcher. It is this, with the fact that the Progressives have no representation on the election boards, that makes possible a larger vote for Fletcher than otherwise would be recorded.

In Road Making

X.—The Macadam Road.

By LOGAN WALLER PAGE,
Director Office of Public Roads,
United States Department
of Agriculture.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1912.

WHEN it is considered that a rise of one foot in a hundred increases by about twenty pounds the amount of force required to haul a load of one ton the question of grades is one not to be overlooked in road building. The character of the soil and natural drainage conditions have much to do with the cost of maintenance. Therefore too much consideration cannot be given to location. The main points to be dealt with are (1) directness, (2) grade, (3) natural drainage and (4) character of the soil.

The foundation to be built for any road should depend largely upon local conditions. Some soils of a gravelly nature make the best foundations and will be sufficient without treatment other than grading upon which to construct a macadam road.

Soils that are of a clayey nature or that contain pockets of quicksand, unstable earth or organic matter are treacherous and require special treatment. In such cases the unstable material should be removed and replaced with gravel or sand, and wherever practicable the earth subgrade should be thoroughly rolled, preferably with a steam roller, and made to conform in crown or camber to the surface of the finished road. Sandy subgrades may be improved by the use of a thin layer of clay or soil.

There are two forms of drainage essential in road building, (1) surface drainage and (2) subdrainage. There are three essential points to be considered in connection with surface drainage. (1) The surface of the road should be of such a shape that water will quickly drain from it to the side ditches; (2) the side ditches should be adequate in size to carry, without overflow, the maximum rainfall, and they should be of such depth and grade that water will travel easily to low points on the road, and (3) from the low points there should be suitable outlets to convey the water to the natural drainage of the country.

Water should never be permitted to remain under a macadam road; consequently subdrainage must be resorted to at times. Water softens the foundation, allows the broken stone to be forced into it by the traffic, and in freezing it expands and dislodges the broken stone, destroying the bond. There are several ways of removing the subsurface water, (1) by raising the subgrade; (2) by side drains consisting of narrow trenches filled with broken stone, with a pipe five or six inches in diameter near the bottom. A drain of this type should have frequent side outlets. On hillsides a pipe or culvert is carried under the road at suitable points.

Another type of subdrain that is much used in Massachusetts is the "V" drain. It consists in shaping the subdrain in the form of a "V," the angle being at the center of the road. This is filled with coarse stone up to the foundation grade and has frequent side outlets. This type is rather expensive and very frequently can be dispensed with by raising the subgrade with

Sad Rites Over Body of Well Known Man.

Richard Warren King, Survivor of San Juan Hill and College Graduate, Writes Verse.

"FOUND" BY LOCAL ATTORNEYS

While in Office For Night Incribes Weird Poem to Morphine—In Dope's Grasp.

A second DeQuincey, who can weave delightful—and at the same time weird—thoughts into verse, while under the influence of morphine, has been found in Richard Warren King, a DePauw graduate, who is, in the vernacular, down and out, and who has been here for several days seeking help from kindly Rushville men.

While in the hospital during the Spanish-American war, King was subjected to a morphine treatment to ease his pain which fastened a habit on him that has blighted his life. The dope has presented him with a wasted and shriveled shell of a body which must weary through the world until the end.

That Richard Warren King is talented, that it is unnecessary to take his word for it, is evidenced by some of the gems of verse that he has produced during the last few days he has been here. He appealed to a local law firm for assistance and their desire to help him resulted in the discovery that he is a genius while under the influence of the terrible drug.

Richard Warren King's is a pathetic story. Born and reared of good parentage in Franklin county, near Brookville, he got a common school education and graduated from the high school. Seeking higher honors he took the four year course at DePauw University and graduated.

When the Spanish-American war broke out, the chance to enlist appealed to this adventurous youth. He saw active service in the war, but his step in going to war was the fatal one for him. King declares he was in Col. Roosevelt's company in the battle of San Juan Hill, and was wounded, the last one being the one which sent him to the hospital and caused his life to be stunted at its very outset.

King describes the battle of San Juan Hill in a fascinating manner. He was wounded first he says, when a ball pierced his hip. He saw the constellation in an instant, but soon recovered and was in the thick of the fray again. The second time, King relates, a filthy Spaniard had a drawn sword at his breast and was in the act of stabbing him to death when King shot him. King carries a scar on his breast where the sword pierced the skin.

But the fateful third injury was the one which proved King's undoing. He was slugged over the head with the butt end of a rifle in the hands of a Spaniard, and the next time he realized his surroundings, he was in a hospital. He never emerged from there a healthy man, the kind of a man he was when he entered the service.

"Are you a Bull Mooser?" was asked King.

"I hardly believe I am," answered King. "I always admired Teddy a great deal for his daring and leadership, but I would have thought a great deal more of him if he had taken his medicine at Chicago like any brave soldier should."

"But his actions now are characteristic," said King when he began to describe the battle of San Juan Hill. "He is the Teddy of old, the daring, adventurous spirit that knows no leader or no one above him. He takes

ARE ELATED OVER MICHIGAN TREND

Republicans Here Receive Official Count of Primary, Showing Bull Moose Trailing Behind.

ONLY 7 PER CENT OF G. O. P.

James E. Watson, Home From Vermont, Says Conditions There Are Chaotic.

Republicans here are elated over the returns from Michigan where a primary was held last week. The official count shows the following Republicans, 143,006; Democrats, 21,205; Bull Moose, 5,613.

Local members of the G. O. P. have expressed much satisfaction since these figures have been made public as it indicates that all of the stuff that has been written about Bull Moose strength is mere fancy. Michigan was counted as one of the States Roosevelt expected to carry and it was believed to be a Bull Moose stronghold. Yet the Bull Moose vote was not seven per cent of that cast for the Republican candidates.

The Indianapolis Star, the chief expounder of the Bull Moose doctrine in Indiana, has never published these figures in editions received here. Yet if the Bull Moosers had made anything like a creditable showing the Star would have heralded it far and wide. Republicans here take this as an indication that the strength of the Bull Moose is on the wane, or else it never was very strong at all. And even at that not one-third of the Michigan vote came out to the polls. The vote there is about six hundred thousand.

James E. Watson arrived this morning from Vermont where he made a speech Saturday night. He says political conditions there are very chaotic, and it is difficult to ascertain just what trend today's election will take. They are holding a State election there today. Roosevelt expressed fear as to the outcome in Vermont shortly before leaving that State Saturday, but Mr. Watson says that is a bugaboo, because Roosevelt desires to brag of the great victory if he does gain a slight advantage.

Republican leaders are feeling more gratified on account of the news which is coming in from the poll of voters being taken in various parts of the State. It is their belief from the facts they have at hand that the Bull Moose movement reached its highest tide sometime ago and is now receding with a rapidity that is becoming apparent every day.

Fred A. Sims, State chairman, says he is highly pleased both with the results of the poll which is being taken over the State and with the news which is constantly coming in of the organization of strong Republican clubs in various counties and enthusiastic Republican meetings. Mr. Sims says that the poll taken in one hundred precincts scattered all over the State show that there is not more than one Bull Moose to each eight Republicans and that Taft is leading Roosevelt all the way from three to ten to one.

For example, it is said that in Montgomery county, where the last Republican vote for President was 4,203, the poll of two-thirds of the county has revealed only 151 Bull Moosers. It is estimated that there are not more than two hundred Bull Moosers in Clinton county, and scarcely half that many in Newton county. Reports from other counties the Republican leaders say, show conclusively that there is more noise than substance in the Bull Moose claims of strength in Indiana. It is anticipated that the big Republican

Prosecutor is Ordered by Judge Blair to Appear in Each of the Cases.

ONE DIVORCE IS GRANTED

The $10,000 Bowman Damage Suit Against Milroy Co. and $5,000 Damage Suit Dismissed.

This term of the circuit court opened in earnest today, when action was taken in a number of cases. The docket is heavily laden with cases, and from present indications, a lot of business will be done. At least there is a lot there to be done.

The defendants in five divorce suits defaulted today and in each instance the prosecutor was ordered to appear when the case is heard. A divorce was granted to James W. Floyd from his wife, Ida B. Floyd, upon payment of costs.

The divorce suits in which the defendants defaulted were William Perkins against Katherine Perkins, Rhoda A. Pattison against Cary L. Pattison, Charles A. Sayler against Lorena Sayler, Margaret A. Monfort against Gilbert Monfort, and Daisy Castleman against Sidney Castleman. There was nothing for Gilbert Monfort to do but default, because he is now serving time in the Indiana State penitentiary for passing a forged check.

On motion of the plaintiff the case of Minnie Bowman, administratrix of the estate of Robert L. Bowman, against the Milroy Drain & Tile Company for ten thousand dollars damages, was sent to Shelby county on a change of venue. Mrs. Bowman asked that amount in damages on account of the death of her husband, who was killed by an explosion at the Milroy plant. She alleges escaping gas, through negligence of the company, was instrumental in her husband's death.

The case of Emory Ratekin against James L. Barnes and George Tishock, Logansport contractors, for five thousand dollars damages, was dismissed. Ratekin claimed that amount of damages because of an injury which he received to one of his feet while working on the New Salem school building. The Logansport man had the contract for the building.

Judge Blair today rendered judgment for the defendant in the case of the State of Indiana on the relation of the Farmers Trust Company against the Board of Finance of Orange township. He found for the board of finance last spring.

The case of Carey O. Patton against the Big Four railroad for $550 for damages due to the loss on stock shipped over the road was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

Commissioners Busy Today at Their Regular Monthly Meeting.

The county commissioners were in regular monthly session in the courthouse today. The usual claims for the month were allowed. The most of the day was spent by the commissioners in figuring up the road tax levy in each township for roads under construction. The result of their figuring showed that Noble township has the highest levy—sixty-six cents. But even this is lower than last year when the Noble township levy was seventy-five cents.

HOLD ALL DAY MEETING

Sunday School of Blue Ridge Spends an Enjoyable Day.

A big all day meeting was held on Sunday in the W. S. Thompson grove near Blue Ridge by the Sunday schools of the Christian Union and the Methodist churches at that place. There were over four hundred people present. About one hundred gallons of lemonade were consumed. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Whitted and the Rev. Mr. McMullin and by the Rev. Mr. Clinton of Shelbyville. Another meeting will be held next Sunday. The meeting will be addressed by the Rev. Mr. Fair of Homer, the Rev. Mr. Stewart of Homer and others.

T. W. Lytle and Charles Frazeé Wire Their Train is Detained in Wisconsin by Washouts.

WATER, WATER AT EVERY TURN

Postmaster Charles Frazeé and T. W. Lytle, who left here Sunday on a fishing trip near Minnequa, Wisconsin, are encompassed by a flood such as has not raged in that part of Wisconsin for several years, according to a telegram received from them this morning. They wired that there were "washouts behind us and washouts in front of us," but they didn't say whether there were washouts to the right of them. They were detained at Mosmee, Wis., and are uncertain when they will be able to reach the place they intended to go. Last night's was not the first flood they met with. Out of Chicago Sunday night they were detained by a flood. The telegram said that they could see nothing but a wide expanse of water.

SUPPLIES FOR NEXT REGISTER ARE HERE

One More Blank is Included This Time as Compared to May Registration.

VOTERS URGED TO REGISTER

The supplies for the second registration to take place in Indiana under the new law next Friday, September 6, have been received by County Auditor Jesse Stone. The supplies this time will contain one more blank than did those given out in May.

The extra blank will be for persons of foreign birth who came to the United States with their fathers and became citizens by virtue of the naturalization of their parents. The only blanks which were provided at the first registration were for native born voters and for those who were foreign born but had declared their intentions of becoming citizens.

The various party organizations are becoming active in their efforts to get the voters to register in September. The State organizations are sending instructions to the local organizations to get the votes out. Those who registered in May will not have to register again unless they have moved or should move before the October registration. Unless registered at one of the three periods for that purpose no voter will be allowed to cast his ballot.

LOCAL STEPPERS IN EVERY RACE

First Day's Card at the State Fair Shows Rushville Trainers in Every Event.

HARRIE JONES IS IN ALL THREE

Dope Bucket is Spilled and Clell Maple's Game of Chance Takes Second Money.

Rush county horse flesh was much in evidence at the first day's races at the State fair in Indianapolis yesterday. Either a Rush county pacer or trotter or a Rushville driver was in every one of the three races on the program.

Clell Maple, who according to the dope sheet, was to win the three-year-old pace with Game of Chance, failed to keep up with the expectations of the dopes, and had to be content with second money. He won the first heat with ease, but was unable to outdistance Dan Pointer in the last two heats. The time by heats was 2:14 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:13 $\frac{1}{4}$ and 2:15 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Game of Chance is Rush county bred and trained and belongs to a Rush county man. He is by The Patchen Boy, the famous old pacer who was kept here by Dick Wilson for a number of years, and his dam was out of Gambrel. Game of Chance has been considered one of the most likely colts out this year. He has won several races, and has taken a number of seconds.

Harrie Jones drove Azim in the 2:24 trot yesterday but did not get in the money. The horse finished fifth each of the three heats. Harrie Jones won third money in the 2:17 pace with Phirobells, finishing second, third and fourth respectively. Katherine E., another horse in Jones' stable, went one heat in the pace, finishing seventh and was drawn. Harrie won third money in the three-year-old pace with Javelin, finishing second and third twice.

Speaking of the three-year-old pace, the Indianapolis Star says:

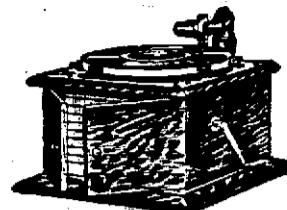

"The feature race of the afternoon races was the 3-year-old-and-under class for pacers, won by the Indiana-bred colt, Dan Pointer, driven by A. J. Wood of Goshen, Ind., who bred him and owns his sire, the great Elastic Pointer, 2:06 $\frac{1}{2}$, champion three-mile pacer of the world. Game of Chance won the opening heat of this event in an easy manner and looked to have the other colts at his mercy, but Dan Pointer took the lead from him in the second heat at the first quarter and was at the half leading comfortably in 1:51 $\frac{1}{2}$, maintaining his lead to the wire in this event. He was not compelled to stop the third heat faster than 2:10 $\frac{1}{2}$, in an easy mile, in which he led the entire distance."

Local people are taking more than usual interest in the State fair this year, and the crowd from here promises to be larger each succeeding day. Yesterday a number of fast horse admirers were attracted to the fair to see Clell Maple drive Game of Chance.

It is not likely that many days of the State fair will pass without a Rush county driver being in at least one race. Harrie Jones and Clell Maple have several entries, and John Dagler will probably drive Ruth Randolph one day this week.

Rushville is represented in departments other than the speed department, because A. P. Walker and John F. Boyd, both Jersey cattle admirers, have their choicest herd of Jerseys at the fair this week and will enter the ring against one another.

FERTILE VALLEYS INUNDATED

Reports From Western Pennsylvania,
Eastern Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia Are Meager, Owing to Devastation of Wire Service, but Twenty-Four Known Dead and Millions of Loss Give Hint of Worse.Pittsburgh, Sept. 3.—Fragmentary reports from the flooded region following torrential rain and cloudbursts throughout western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and large parts of the Panhandle of West Virginia, tell of at least twenty-four dead, millions of dollars of property destroyed, railroads and telegraphs demoralized.The latest reports give the following table of deaths:Colliers, W. Va., at least nine drowned and probably twenty.Cherry Valley, six drowned.
Burgettstown, one drowned.
Avella, three drowned.Cannonsburg, four drowned.
Pittsburg, one killed by lightning.The list of fatalities will probably be greater, for in many parts of the devastated district there will be no wire communication for some days.The telegraph companies and the Pennsylvania and Wabash railroads have thousands of men at work making repairs. For nearly five hours the rain fell in torrents. Cloudburstsfilled fertile valleys, raging rivers annihilated crops and carried away bridges and railroad tracks. Lightning struck in scores of places.Streams in a few hours became grim agents of destruction. Traffic practically stopped and wire traffic is paralyzed throughout most of the region.Colliers and Cherry Valley in West Virginia are practically wiped out. A dozen places in the extreme western end of Pennsylvania are inundated.At New Philadelphia, Steubenville and other Ohio towns near the Ohio river, the damage wrought was heavy.The Panhandle division of the Pennsylvania railroad has ceased train operations. Fourteen miles of track were washed away near Colliers.Three bridges were carried downstream. For miles down Raccoon creek the roadbed is submerged. It will be a fortnight before traffic can be resumed there. A freight train on the Wabash jumped the track five miles north of Wellsburgh, W. Va., and the entire train rolled into Cross creek. The engineer swam out, but the remainder of the train crew drowned.
Washington county alone represents property damage that will exceed $2,000,000. Thousands of sheep and cattle were drowned in the fields.
The Monongahela and Allegheny rivers are near the flood stage and consequently the Ohio is overflowing its banks at many points west of Pittsburgh.The government's predictions that the crop now being harvested will exceed any previous year's yield," said
Mr. Pennybacker, "should serve to call attention to the great losses that are being sustained by farmers and consumers in the hauling of crops. It is estimated that the improvement of the main roads of this country, approximately 20 per cent, would result in an annual saving of at least $250,000,000 in the cost of hauling alone, which would be sufficient to improve 50,000 miles of road at a further cost of $5,- 000 a mile. In five years this would improve 250,000 miles, which would be sufficient to bring the total mileage of improved roads up to 20 per cent."

Sam Sanderson Says:

That Armageddon is uncomfortably hot even for a winter resort.

that it is practically inoperative. Governor Plaisted himself is a "wet." In his address Governor Marshall refused to discuss the liquor question, saying that it was a "local question." In his speech he said:

"I am a Democrat, and because I am a Democrat I believe in the doctrine of local self government. I believe, too, at this particular time, national issues are of more importance than local questions. Therefore I want to talk exclusively on what I consider to be national issues."

It cost $160,000 to nominate him, not including expenses paid from "another fund" and the money spent by "local committees." Had all this money been spent in behalf of anybody else it would have been a corruption fund. In this case, however, it is to be looked upon as being as righteous as if it were a church contribution.

Whatever may happen in the next few years there are thousands and thousands of his fellow citizens who will never believe that Theodore Roosevelt ever gave his successor in the white house the "square deal" that he preaches about so profusely in public.

Let the blovintors rant as they may, the time has not yet come when a constitutional or legal right is to be regarded as a political or social wrong.

Here is the prediction that before election day the Ananias club will be full to overflowing and the number of "undesirable citizens" will be multiplied by thousands.

The "square deal" is all right, and should be adopted by everybody, but it is one thing to preach it and a very different thing to practice it.

The Colonel's objection to Penrose is that the Pennsylvanian is no longer going his way.

"No réform is possible without honesty," says T. R. This is true, of course, comments the Marion Chronicle. There is many a man who may be depended upon to be at a certain place at a certain hour to pay a certain amount of money, if he promises to be there. This is honesty, so far as that one transaction goes, and the man is honest in this respect in all his transactions, and yet this same man may be a thief at heart. It is business—good business—to keep such promises. In this respect honesty is the best policy, and it may be so practiced merely as a shrewd policy, and yet this same man who adopts and practices this policy may have the instincts of a thief. But genuine honesty expresses only its convictions. It will not say things merely to "look well in the Record." It will not attempt to mislead, and, as a rule, it will not be vociferous in denunciation of others who disagree with it in matters of mere opinion.

According to T. R., Andrew Jackson "had no mind of his own;" Monroe was nothing but a "figurehead;" Madison was a man of "imbecile capacity" and "a disgrace to the country," while Thomas Jefferson was "timid, vacillating, the most incapable executive that ever sat in the presidential chair, and was incapable of placing the proper value upon the truth." After all, perhaps there has never been but one honest and capable president, and of course everybody knows who that is in the estimation of Oyster Bay.

Governor Marshall, in his first speech in Maine, refused to discuss the liquor question now agitating Maine. Maine, as will be remembered, was the first prohibition state. The law was passed over fifty years ago. The Democrats recently got control of the State under Governor Plaisted, and so modified the law his orders from Theodore Roosevelt alone.

"It was this trait in him that nearly resulted in the annihilation of his company. There would never have been the terrible assault at San Juan had it not been for the fact that Roosevelt disobeyed orders. He dashed up the hill ahead of the command and was soon encased between two battalions of Spaniards who were eager for American blood. Roosevelt's retreat was cut off from behind and there was only a bare possibility that any aid would come in time.

"Thanks to the two companies of colored soldiers that the Bull Moose party has a leader and that I am here to relate the story, for they saved the day. It was not Roosevelt. The colored boys routed the Spaniards behind us and left open a retreat, but not without some damage to us."

King has taken the cure for morphine habit twice, but it had no effect on his diseased mind. Each time he has emerged from the treatment no better in body or spirit. King asserts that the second class he was in for treatment for the morphine habit also included the famous novelist, Opie Reid, who has lectured here.

King declares that in this second treatment, they kept shooting slugs of something into him which the physicians said was not morphine, but which he was convinced afterwards was morphine. He said he was stark crazy for a dose of dope within twenty-six hours after he was sent out leased as cured.

Opie Reid, too, King declares, was not cured of the habit. He says the famous Kentucky novelist is still a servant of dope, and used it as regularly as he ever did. King asserts that he has corresponded with Opie Reid since they were released from the hospital, and that Reid wrote him he could withstand the pangs of hunger for morphine no more than thirty-six hours after he was sent out as cured.

King applied to a local law firm the other day for work. The attorneys had compassion on him and attempted to assist him. King has just been released from an Indianapolis hospital where he nearly died with the fever, and presents a sorry countenance and figure. He was allowed to sleep in this law office several nights, and the barristers were rewarded for their kindness with several pieces of poetry which King wrote during the long nights and which he left about on the tables.

The first two King left were gems and the attorneys went into rapsodies. The first was pathetic, and expressed the sorrow and regret of a wasted life. The second was brimful of mirth, and in a happy vein, it described good old Kentucky. But the one which King left in the office only recently indicates the abject condition of his mind while under the influence of the drug, and the same time it reveals the wonderful resourcefulness of the man. It is inscribed to his god, "Morphine," and it is reproduced herewith:

Morphine.

Love thee, I loathe thee, thou false friend of hell.
No language the depths of my loathing can tell.
I hate, I dread thee, and yet have I given

For thee every bright hope in earth and in heaven.

When wounded and suffering, too weak to contend,

Thou camest to me in the guise of a friend;

Did quiet each doubt and banish each pain,

But drew round me thy fetters till struggle was vain.

Then when thy poor victim discovered,

too late,

And sought to escape from his terrible fate,

How dreadful the tortures that o'er him you threw,

Until in despair he returned unto you.

But when he once more acknowledged thy power,

Oh, sweet was the welcome received in that hour.

Not one of the faithful e'er knew greater bliss

When in Paradise welcomed by his Hours sweet kiss.

Yet curse thee for thou has brought me a curse.

E'en Dante's Inferno depicts nothing worse.

And yet thou alone canst give me relief.

In the midst of my sorrow, my pain and my grief.

Yet, d—mn thee forever, thou fiend from below;

My last dying breath shall heap curses on you.

Aye, d—mn thee forever, no foul serpent's sting

Is one-half so bitter as that thou dost bring.

Love thee? Thou who has ruined my life,

Hast robbed me of friends, money, children and wife,

Of all worth living for I am bereft,

Only the sad, bitter memory is left.

I dread thee and hate thee, yet thee to obtain,

I would risk every danger, endure every pain.

And thou alone of all has been true to every call,
Unto every call life's lone journey through.

Hast cheered me in trouble, in pain given relief,

Given comfort in midst of my sorrow and grief,

Given heed to my cry in my sad loneliness,

In memory's pain, sweet forgetfulness.

Then come unto me, my enemy dear,

In thy influence sweet, I'll forget pain and fear.

There, thou art in my arm, soon I'll be in thine,
And wrapt in thy arms, sweet slumber be mine.

CHAPTER XX.

The Picture Gallery.

I thought I knew Jo. I don't. She had either changed since we separated, or there were latent qualities in her that I never suspected. She had never been curious, especially about things that were none of her business, but she linked her arm through mine as we went toward the drawing-room after dinner.

"Who is the duke in love with?" she wanted to know.

"Natalie," I replied.

"Not wants to marry," she qualified, "but cares for—loves?"

"If you mean anything horrid, clandestine—why, I don't know anything about it, and I don't think you have any business thinking such things."

She merely smiled at my outburst. "Is there a picture gallery here?" she asked presently.

"Yes. Why?"

"Oh, no reason particularly. There always is in these houses, isn't there?"

"No. There always isn't. Everybody I know, except the Hazards, have their pictures in town."

"Louise, what was the name of the German count who took us to the Spring Exhibition?"

"Count Felix von Brunner," I answered promptly.

"Of course!" she exclaimed. "I've racked my brain for an hour trying to think of it."

I turned about and faced her.

"Now look here, Jo, you are making me crazy with curiosity. You've asked me three questions for no reason on earth that I can see, and I want to know why."

"And you haven't asked me the one question I expected you to ask." Jo smiled quizzically.

Suddenly I thought of it.

"Where did you know John?" I demanded.

"He has a client who wants to buy our stock in the mine," she answered; "a client who thinks he can pump it dry."

"Can it be done, Jo?"

"I don't know." She laughed outright at my excitement. "He wants to buy up all the stock. He can get it cheap, except ours. He offers us five thousand dollars for it. It's worth nothing unless the mine is pumped. Odd, wasn't it, Mr. Crowninshield never guessed who I was? And of course I didn't tell him."

"Gracious me!" I exclaimed, rather breathless at the prospect. "What does Mr. Partridge say?"

"Sell."

"Well, what are you—we—going to do? Sell?"

"I'd rather have the income," she answered.

"But there isn't any," I pointed out.

"If a man knows—and he does know, Louise—that he can pump that mine dry, can buy up all the stock practically for nothing, except ours, and he lets our little bundle keep him from pumping, he's crazy. And if he pumps we will have an income. It's a gambler's chance, and I am going to take it."

"Yes, sounds gamby," I commented. "What the poker players call a bluff."

"I'm not bluffing—I'm standing pat," Jo reminded me. "And I'm taking the chance because I want to end this."

When A Laxative is Needed--"Gasparets."

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act on Bowels as Pepper Acts in Nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with calts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for mouths. Don't forget the children.

HAY FEVER ATTACKS QUICKLY ENDED

Just Try Ely's Cream Balm, A Cleaning, Healing Antiseptic Cream.

Are you half sick for two or three months every summer with Hay Fever—violent sneezing spells, running at the nose, intense itching in the corners of the eyes, pain and soreness in the back of the throat, at nights a stuffed-up feeling in the head and an asthmatic wheezing in the throat and chest? If so, you can get almost instant relief by simply using a cleansing, healing antiseptic Cream, called Ely's Cream Balm.

Hay Fever is due to an extremely sensitive condition of the membrane lining the nose and throat. Dust, smoke and certain odors irritate this delicate inside skin, it becomes inflamed, caused a watery discharge from the nose and violent spasms of sneezing.

Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in five minutes' time. It opens up the air passages, soothes, heals and strengthens the weakened, inflamed membranes, restores them to healthy, normal condition, so that you are not subject to Hay Fever attacks.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today. Give it a fair trial, and get your money back if you are not satisfied.

work of yours, dear, and these silly accusations."

We had walked to the end of the wide hallway, and I dropped down in a window seat, grossly neglecting my duties and forgetting that my fiends were apt to get mixed. The prospect of going back to that tidy little life Jo and I once led suddenly appalled me.

"I don't want you to—to end it," I stammered. And seeing Jo's amazed expression, I hurried on: "Being Secretary of Frivolous Affairs isn't important, I know, but it's my life now. I can't go back to things as they were. I would never be satisfied."

"You can't seriously mean that you want to keep on with this? Being a well-paid servant of the rich?" she asked.

"Yes," I admitted.

"I'm sorry, dear," she said softly.

"Why sorry?"

"It's dangerous!"

"Why dangerous? I'm quite capable of taking care of myself. You said so."

"You're already in trouble."

"Yes, but my heart's broken now, and there isn't anything more to worry about. I'll never love any one else. I have a good job, and—well, I'm going to stick to it. And when the Hazards don't want me any longer the Dykemans do, and there's a long list of others I won't bother you to name. I've made good in my job, which reminds me that if I don't go look after it I may not have it very long." I rose; it never occurred to me that I was pushing Jo out of my scheme of life. "Use the stock to finance the dressmaking, dear, and take a little tip from me—you take care of yourself!"

"Why, what do you mean?" Jo asked, but I'm sure she knew what I was going to answer.

John Crowninshield never looked twice at a woman in his life; he has looked at you I don't know how many times, for I don't know how many interviews have been necessary about that stock, but—"I thrust out a rigid forefinger dramatically—"beware!"

It was perhaps ten o'clock when Jo took a notion to see the gallery. The notion was quite sudden, too. She even interrupted John to say so, apropos of nothing. We met Hap on the stairs as we went up. I remembered afterward that he looked puzzled and was flushed a little. He shouted to Burrows from the stairs.

"Who locked the card-room?"

"No one, sir."

"It's locked; have it unlocked. Where is Thomas?"

"I don't know, sir."

There was more anger in the way he spoke to Burrows than such a simple thing warranted. He came up to the gallery with us, glaring at the card-room door as we passed.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Do you want to play poker?"

"No, but I want the room unlocked. It's not supposed to be locked."

We climbed upward in silence.

"Well, you might quit looking like a thundercloud," I suggested presently. "I haven't been horrid, have I?"

He glanced up to where Jo and John Crowninshield were disappearing into the gallery, and apropos of nothing he seized my hand and pressed it to his lips.

Inside the picture gallery was Thomas, the footman about whom Hap had asked Burrows. When Jo and John Crowninshield entered they found him standing in front of the Velasquez, staring at it oddly. He should have been below, of course. Upon our entrance he turned and stalked out. Hap looked after him with a pucker of perplexity in his forehead.

Jo was surprised at the size of the gallery, just as I had been. She hadn't expected it. She walked the length of the room, then turned back.

"Are all these pictures originals?" she asked.

Hap and I Dropped Down on a Bench.

"No," John answered her. "A few are copies, but valuable copies."

"Let's see if I can pick the copies," she suggested, and walked the length of the gallery again.

Hap and I dropped down on a bench, but John followed her.

"That one," said Jo presently.

"Oh, that's easy, Jo," I cried. "The original is in the National Gallery, and you know it."

"And this!"

"No, that's a Greuze," John explained.

"Sorry," smiled Jo. "Greuze made so many heads, didn't he? Is the Lely next to it genuine?"

"Yes."

"Is that a Velasquez, or a copy?"

Hap asked her, and indicated the disputed picture before which we were sitting.

I know I went red, but he was not looking at me. He led the way to a rustic bench that ran the length of the court, and waited for me to sit down.

Ballots Today.

THE CONTEST IS A BITTER ONE

Campaign For Governorship Has Aroused an Interest Unprecedented in the Old Green Mountain State, and the Vote Today Is Expected to Break All Records—Possibility of Contest Going to the Legislature.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 3.—A political campaign for the governorship of Vermont unprecedented by the interest aroused and of bitterness engendered, ended with rallies in scores of towns and cities last night. A vote approaching 70,000 is prophesied in today's election, of which C. D. Thompson, state chairman of the Progressive party, claims 20,000. That this is the high water mark is evidenced by the more conservative claims of other Bull Moose leaders. Twelve thousand and upward will be a virtual victory for the third party movement, and to keep this figure down is the desperate endeavor of the old guard Republicans. They are making no statement other than that their candidate will be elected today. For a quarter of a century the average vote in Vermont on the presidential year has been 62,000. Giving the Prohibitionists and Socialists their thousand each, about 60,000 votes are left to be divided between Allen Fletcher of Cavendish, Republican, Harland B. Howe, of St. Johnsbury, Democrat, and the Rev. Frazer Metzger of Randolph, Progressive. Two years ago the Democratic nominee for governor polled 17,000 votes. Mr. Howe is expected to exceed this number because of the strong Wilson sentiment in many parts of the state.

That the Democrats went to the polls today with unbroken ranks is virtually conceded. If they succeed in bringing their vote up to 20,000 the 40,000 left for the regular Republicans and Progressives will likely be split into 25,000 for Fletcher and 15,000 for Metzger, and the election will be thrown into the legislature. The senate will be almost solidly Republican, according to custom, and as the Progressives have less than fifty candidates for the house, the representatives will be for Fletcher by a large majority. The only thing that will overthrow this alignment is a surprising gain on the part of the Democrats. Vermont has not been so shaken in years, and a surprising vote either way will not upset the knowing politicians.

There is no doubt here that the serious fight in which the state department viewed the assault on Mr. Gibson, the charge d'affaires, and the campaign of newspaper abuse is responsible for the Gomez message to the president soon.

The department is now waiting to see whether Gibson's assailant will be punished as promised and the newspapers deprived of any excuse for further misrepresenting the attitude of the United States and their own government in the matter of the Reilly and other claims.

Road Making

X.—The Macadam Road.

By LOGAN WALLER PAGE,
Director Office of Public Roads,
United States Department
of Agriculture.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1912.

WHEN it is considered that a rise of one foot in a hundred increases by about twenty pounds the amount of force required to haul a load of one ton the question of grades is one not to be overlooked in road building. The character of the soil and natural drainage conditions have much to do with the cost of maintenance. Therefore too much consideration cannot be given to location. The main points to be dealt with are (1) directness, (2) grade, (3) natural drainage and (4) character of the soil.

The foundation to be built for any road should depend largely upon local conditions. Some soils of a gravelly nature make the best foundations and will be sufficient without treatment other than grading upon which to construct a macadam road.

Soils that are of a clayey nature or that contain pockets of quicksand, unstable earth or organic matter are treacherous and require special treatment. On top of this is placed a three or four inch layer of one and one-half inch stone, and after thoroughly rolling a layer of rock screenings below three-quarters of an inch in size is spread. This layer of screenings should be sufficient only to fill the surface voids of the wearing course and should not be applied all in one layer. Each application of screenings should be rolled in before the next application is made. After the surface has been thoroughly filled with screenings the road should be well sprinkled with a watering cart and rolled with a steam roller until it is thoroughly bonded. This rolling should continue until the surface ceases to wave in front of the roller.

Stone should never be dumped on the road, and if specially devised spreading wagons are not used the stone should be dumped on boards and spread from them on to the road. The contractor should be required to place about a hundred tons of No. 2 stone and screenings at a convenient place for each mile of road built for the purpose of making future repairs.

The telford road of today varies only from the macadam road in that it has a hard paved foundation course, consisting of coarse stone eight or nine inches in its greatest dimensions. These stones are placed on edge in the subgrade by hand on their broadest bases and at right angles to the line of the road, and all irregular portions are broken off with hammers.

This type of road was first designed by a French engineer named Tresaguet forty years in advance of Telford. The roads built by Telford had flat subgrades, but those constructed by Tresaguet had cumbered subgrades, which are supposed to have the effect of a keystone arch, and this is the form in which they are constructed today. It is rather an interesting fact that in France practically all of the broken stone roads are of the Macadam type, while in England they are largely of the Tresaguet or Telford type.

Experience has proved that the only way in which roads can be kept in good condition and at reasonable cost is by continuous and intelligent maintenance. It is a mistaken although unfortunately general impression that certain types of road are permanent. No permanent road has ever been constructed or ever can be.

Gutters, catch basins and culverts ought by all means to be kept clear, and small gullies in shoulders should be filled before they become too large. The loose stone which nearly always appears on the surface of a macadam road the first spring after it is built should be raked up and stacked for future use. Small holes and incipient

Washington Has Heard of No New Developments in Nicaragua.

Washington, Sept. 3.—But one dispatch from Nicaragua was received at the state department today and that, from Minister Weitzel, was so garbled that it had to be repeated. Admiral Southerland has made no report in the last twenty-four hours, and the government is without any late information regarding the situation.

Another type of subdrain that is much used in Massachusetts is the "V" drain. It consists in shaping the subdrain in the form of a "V," the angle being at the center of the road. This is filled with coarse stone up to the foundation grade and has frequent side outlets. This type is rather expensive and very frequently can be dispensed with by raising the subgrade with suitable sand, gravel or clay.

Another type of drain practical for side hill locations is a subside drain, located on the upper side of the road to intercept and provide an outlet for surface and ground water before it reaches the road proper.

Great care should be used in properly grading a road.

The practice in America is generally to place the maximum grade at 5 per cent for important roads, as a horse can trot without difficulty up such a grade, and another important consideration in connection with grades is that a macadam surface can only be maintained at great cost on steep grades.

In fixing the grades the engineer should so adjust the cuts and fills as to make the least possible waste of material, and in this he must not overlook the fact that some materials shrink to a great extent when taken from the cuts and placed in the fills. This varies with the material. The average about 15 per cent. The careful engineer will set his grade stakes not more than fifty feet apart, and in no case should they be over a hundred, and these will serve later for the macadam work. In grading ample material should be left to form the shoulder. Care should be used in properly shaping cuts and fills to avoid as far as possible settlement of material. A slope of not less than one and one-half to one should be used. Care should also be taken to have the gutter grades so fixed that there will be at least fall of six inches in each hundred feet in order to provide surface drainage.

In general, any stone that is to be used in road building should be tested for hardness, toughness, resistance to wear and binding or cementing value. The specific gravity, weight per cubic foot and water absorbed are also determined. With such data as this in hand and a knowledge of the volume and character of traffic to which the road is subjected the engineer can make an intelligent selection of the best available material. While the databases, diorites and basalts, all commonly known as traprock, in general meet the conditions where macadam roads are necessary, yet it is unwise to select a rock by species alone, as they all vary greatly.

There are two distinct types of broken stone road in use today, known as macadam and telford roads. The macadam road of today is so different from the type specified by Macadam that the relation is hardly recognizable. By the best practices used this road consists in a foundation course of two and one-half inch stone of varying thickness. This foundation should be thoroughly rolled with a steam roller and not more than a thickness of five or six inches rolled at a time. On top of this is placed a three or four inch layer of one and one-half inch stone, and after thoroughly rolling a layer of rock screenings below three-quarters of an inch in size is spread. This layer of screenings should be sufficient only to fill the surface voids of the wearing course and should not be applied all in one layer. Each application of screenings should be rolled in before the next application is made. After the surface has been thoroughly filled with screenings the road should be well sprinkled with a watering cart and rolled with a steam roller until it is thoroughly bonded. This rolling should continue until the surface ceases to wave in front of the roller.

Stone should never be dumped on the road, and if specially devised spreading wagons are not used the stone should be dumped on boards and spread from them on to the road. The contractor should be required to place about a hundred tons of No. 2 stone and screenings at a convenient place for each mile of road built for the purpose of making future repairs.

The telford road of today varies only from the macadam road in that it has a hard paved foundation course, consisting of coarse stone eight or nine inches in its greatest dimensions. These stones are placed on edge in the subgrade by hand on their broadest bases and at right angles to the line of the road, and all irregular portions are broken off with hammers.

This type of road was first designed by a French engineer named Tresaguet forty years in advance of Telford. The roads built by Telford had flat subgrades, but those constructed by Tresaguet had cumbered subgrades, which are supposed to have the effect of a keystone arch, and this is the form in which they are constructed today. It is rather an interesting fact that in France practically all of the broken stone roads are of the Macadam type, while in England they are largely of the Tresaguet or Telford type.

Experience has proved that the only way in which roads can be kept in good condition and at reasonable cost is by continuous and intelligent maintenance. It is a mistaken although unfortunately general impression that certain types of road are permanent. No permanent road has ever been constructed or ever can be.

Gutters, catch basins and culverts ought by all means to be kept clear, and small gullies in shoulders should be filled before they become too large. The loose stone which nearly always appears on the surface of a macadam road the first spring after it is built should be raked up and stacked for future use. Small holes and incipient roads should be filled as soon as they appear with the same kind and size of stone as that used in the surface course.

If small defects are attended to when they first appear it will be unnecessary to resurface the road until it is worn entirely through to the foundation course. When the surface course is worn out it ought to be spaded up with a steam roller or scarifier and this followed by the spreading of a thin layer of one and one-half inch rock. This is rolled, bonded with screenings and stabilized in the same manner as the top course was originally constructed, after which the road will be as smooth as new.

DOUBLE HEADER WON BY LOCALS

Rushville Shuts Out Central Avenue
Team, 9 to 0 and 8 to 0.

AVERY IN "IRON MAN" ROLE

Pitches Both Games and Allows One
Man to Reach Third—Visitors
Are Outclassed.

Chick Avery pulled the iron man stunt on the Central Avenue M. E. team of Indianapolis yesterday and Rushville romped home with both games, 9 to 0 and 8 to 0. "Iron man" Avery, the human shoe string, pitched both games—seven innings each for the locals and not a sign of a run resulted in the fourteen innings. Only one man reached third on Avery and that was in the seventh inning of the last game.

In fact, Avery's pitching was about the only good feature of the double header. The Central Avenue team, winners of the pennant in the Indianapolis Sunday school league was outclassed from start to finish and the contests were about as weird an exhibition as has been seen here this season. It was a farce from start to finish. About all that can be said is that the locals took advantage of the chance to fatten their batting averages. Twenty-one hits in the fourteen innings is the result.

The Rushville team gave "Chick" swell support and the outcome of both games was never in doubt. Costly errors behind Shook, who pitched the first game for the visitors were in part responsible for a number of runs. The Sunday school boys were let down with three scattered hits in the first game and four in the last. In the final game of the Labor day program three of the four hits were made in the ninth and the visitors succeeded in getting a man on third and first with two down, but could not score.

Of the two games the last was the best and then it was bad enough. Will McGuire, a local boy, pitched this game for the visitors. McGuire started like a "house a fire" and for three innings pitched grand ball. In the fourth the locals got to him for two runs and came back in the fifth for four runs. In the fifth Rushville batteled around.

McGuire, if anything, started too fast. For three innings the locals got only two scattered hits. The second game started like a regular ball game. The visitors opened with a little more pep and had visions of making Rushville work for the game. But the stuff did not last long and the contest turned out as did the first. Rushville ran wild on the bases and a few arguments with the "Umps" because they did, tended to break the monotony. The Indianapolis team might win a pennant in a Sunday school league, but they were outclassed here. This is said with all due respect for the visitors had a clean bunch and several good ball players in the list.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Will McGuire is the same heady player that he was years ago when he played here with the fast A. B. C. team. Mae has not gone back—if anything he has improved. He hated to lose the last game, but took the defeat in a fine manner.

Five games and only one run scored against the Rushville team. The one run was made in the Mt. Jackson game.

The Ramblers, a fast colored team of this city, was defeated Sunday at Shelbyville by the Indianapolis Tugs 16 to 5.

Fred Yazel, one-time pitcher for Rushville and Hamilton, pitched for the Marrots at Shelbyville Sunday and lost 16 to 0.

Scanton of the visitors is a nephew of Chief of Police McAllister. He played second base in the first game and third in the second.

Shook, who pitched the first game for Central, is a former Rose Poly player. He was given ragged support, besides being pounded for ten hits.

Avery was the batting kid in the first game getting three safe ones out of as many times up.

Now for a regular ball game!

Sunday For Game With Fast

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR THE FANS

Manager Maibaugh Expects to Take Pennant Winners Into Camp—
Haltermann or Avery to Pitch.

Glad news reached the ears of locals last evening when Manager Dal Williams of the Maxwell-Briscoe team of Newcastle booked the Rushville team for a game there Sunday. Base ball enthusiasts here have longed for a game with Newcastle since the opening of the season and at last the chance comes.

Arrangements are already under way for a special train over the L. E. & W. to take the crowd of rooters to Newcastle for the game. At least 300 loyal fans will accompany the team and aid in a victory over the champions of Indiana State League. If present plans carry, the special will leave here about 12:30 o'clock and returning leave Newcastle at 6 o'clock.

Manager Maibaugh has been anxious for a game with the Maxwell's and the fans have been clamoring for it. Since the league season is closed the game is made possible. The Maxwell team will be the hardest proposition Rushville has been up against this season, but the team and supports are confident of victory and will go there with that intention. At any rate Newcastle will be paid an awful visit.

The game should be a hummer and either way it goes the result will be close. The Maxwell team went through the league season an easy winner, losing only four games. That they have one of the best teams in the State no one will deny, but at the same time Manager Maibaugh believes he can take them into camp. Haltermann or Avery will pitch for Rushville and the rest of the line-up will be the same as in the past.

The last few games have been so easy for the locals that new fields will have to be employed to find a worthy foe and Newcastle looks as good as any for a starter.

THE WEATHER

Generally fair tonight and Wednesday.

State meeting which will be held at the Claypool hotel Wednesday, September 4, will show beyond a doubt that the leaders have just cause for feeling gratified with the situation.

All sources of investigation show it is said that the contest is Taft versus Wilson. Another thing which is growing apparent from investigation is that Beveridge, Bull Moose candidate for Governor, is likely to run behind Roosevelt in Indiana. Indications also are that the Socialists will make large gains.

HEAT WAVE IS NOT EVEN BADLY BENT

Weather Bureau Says it Will be Warmer Tomorrow After Today's Brief Respite.

SATURATION OF AIR GREAT

The cooling breeze that struck Rushville yesterday evening and which was evidently the tail end of the severe storm that swept over the eastern part of the United States failed to break the heat wave which has held Indiana in its grasp for the last few days.

According to V. H. Church, section director of the United States weather bureau, tomorrow morning probably will be warmer than this morning. Fair weather is promised tomorrow.

The temperature today was running considerably behind that of yesterday when a maximum temperature of 95 degrees was recorded. However, the humidity was very high, the percentage of saturation being 95 early this morning as compared with 89 yesterday morning. The high percentage held up during the forenoon.

At seven o'clock the temperature was 69 degrees, as compared with 74 at the corresponding hour yesterday. At 8 it was 70 as compared with 82 at the same hour yesterday.

WILL HOLD FESTIVAL.

A festival will be held at the town hall in Raleigh, Saturday evening, Sept. 7th, 1912.

The profits to go to the benefit of the pastor and the Sunday School of the M. E. church at Raleigh. Anything in the way of donation will be appreciated. Ice cream, cake and lemonade will be the bill of fare.
